

Nonprofit Services

Battle Research Group offers a menu of nonprofit services to support military academic institutions, research teams, government agencies, and private organizations. Please note that we require all fee-for-service engagements to be reviewed by our counsel to ensure compliance with federal 501(c)(3) regulations. All activities must support our core mission: To improve collective understanding of modern warfare. Contact info@battleresearchgroup.org to discuss service options with our team.

Field Research Methods Instruction

Our experts are available to teach a combined desk-field research methods course to military and civilian students. Courses are specifically tailored for students who will be designing and conducting field-driven research. Courses are tailored for desired outcome, time, & budget.

- Field research design
- Ethical research considerations
- Budgeting and safety
- Interview techniques and transcripts
- Data security and HSP management
- Transitioning to analysis & publication

Desk Research Methods Instruction

Our experts are available to teach a desk-only research methods course to military and civilian students. Courses are specifically tailored for students who will be designing and conducting deskside research. Courses are tailored for desired outcome, time, & budget.

- Research design
- Ethical research considerations
- Open source techniques and security
- Source and data management
- Coding and analytic techniques
- Transitioning to publication

Wargaming and Exercises

We are available to design and run wargames and tabletop exercises based either on our original research or on existing-prospective cases. Service is tailored to outcome.

- Research → wargame-exercise
- Moderate or design-run
- After-action report

Mentoring [grantee or pro bono]

Our experts are available to mentor less experienced researchers through the research and publication process. Pro bono mentoring options are available in some cases.

- Guidance on design and methods
- One-on-one support
- Assistance with publication

Professional Writing

We are available to research and write manuscript-length publications, particularly those focused on more modern military history through the present day. This can be a separate or partnered research activity.

- Research and manuscript design
- Writing through final publication
- Post-publication engagements

Research Support

Our senior and more junior researchers are available to provide tailored research support for new or ongoing military research activities, field or deskside, in a range of capacities. Support must align with our core mission.

- Respected authors and researchers
- Research and manuscript design
- Writing through final publication